If you believe that human death is the same as animal death you are gravely mistaken. According to Ecclesiastes 12:7 and Ecclesiastes 3:21, human death is a physical and or spiritual condition of person's body or soul.

It is most important to involve the concept of separation in order to explain death. The spirit and or soul separate from the body.

The spirit of an animal descends while the spirit of a human ascends, differentiating two completely different types of death.

Human death is superior to animal or plant death.

Human death becomes more significant when we define it using the concept of separation because man may die a death by simply being distantly separated from his Creator. He may also die another death when his spirit and or soul separate from his body.

The question is which death is more significant, the distant separation from GOD or the so called physical death?

The answer is not so obvious, but if we love GOD the answer is very clear.

Separation from GOD is the worse death one could encounter.

This spiritual and physical separation from GOD began with Adam's sin in the Garden of Eden. The scripture calls death a wage, something we earn and GOD is the one who defines that wage.

GOD can not tolerate sin of any kind. The wage is earned when we all sin and the wages of sin is death.

The best definition of death is given by JESUS CHRIST our LORD and SAVIOUR. He clearly and adequately defines and describes death in Luke 15:24. Here in this passage of scripture our Creator refers to the prodigal son as being dead because he was separated from his father.
