ABOUT MY OFFICE

If you have not heard of me until now, there's good reason for that. I don't rely on flashy advertising or giant yellow page ads to generate business. I don't handle every type of case under the sun, nor do I represent every client who walks in the door. I don't run a personal injury "mill". And for sure, I don't allow paralegals, legal assistants or inexperienced attorneys to handle your case. I personally handle each case from start to finish, giving it the attention it deserves.

As you will see, my office is a bit different from the rest.

My practice is focused on personal injury cases and insurance cases. Each year I accept only a small number of cases. This allows me to devote more time, resources and attention to you and your case in order to achieve, what I believe are, better results.

It's always been my philosophy that handling a high volume of cases, even if they are small cases, does not do any justice for my clients. Do you want to be one of those clients who wonder whether your case was sold short, or resolved for less than fair value, just so the attorney could close the file and move onto the next? Or, would you rather walk away knowing that your lawyer did everything he or she could possible do for you and your case?

I don't treat clients like commodities. I'll tell you up front whether you have a case that's worth pursuing. I'll even
